

DON'T "BOMB, BOMB IRAN" TRAVEL TO IRAN

as a

CIVILIAN DIPLOMAT FOR PEACE

Less than 500 U.S. citizens visit Iran each year. Yet the Iranian people love Americans, and are famous for their Persian hospitality. How can we bridge the political divisions between our governments at this time of heightened tensions and rhetoric of war?

For more than 80 years, the Fellowship of Reconciliation has sent groups of ordinary civilians to regions of the world in conflict and nations regarded as U.S. "enemies." Since 2005, FOR has sponsored people-to-people delegations between Iran and the United States. Travel to Iran with FOR, and upon your return home you will join a nationwide network of grassroots civilian diplomats working to prevent war and change U.S. foreign policy.
